Remark to colour variation:

In their original form, a colour variation might be noticed from one Cosmospheres type to another, even if the same pigment is used (e.g. Ultramarine Blue in BSL2-M looks darker than in BT3-S). This effect is due to the amount of water in certain raw materials used for the Cosmospheres. In the final application, the colours match and appear equal. Higher amounts of residual water might necessitate the preservation of some Cosmospheres (e.g. Phenoxyethanol in BSL2-M).

Pigment Yellow 1 and Pigmet Blue 15:

Please note that these pigments are not accepted for cosmetic applications in the US Market.
